The following text is from the monsterpedia entry for the [Kappa] species.

The following text is from the monsterpedia entry for the [Alraune] species.

When a succubus transforms into a "parasitic" form, this is what happens: she completely envelopes her target human in his or her lower body and then proceeds to slowly drain that human's life energy as she moves up toward his or her head. In other words, it would be as if an octopus crawled inside you and started to devour you from within.

The following text is from the monsterpedia entry for the [Lamia] species.

A lamia in her default form is a humanoid creature with the torso and head of a woman and the body and tail of a snake; she also has two small, bird-like wings on her back. Lamias generally move around using their wings to fly rather than walking on their snake-like legs; however, this is not always the case as some lamias do choose to walk on their legs.
